

Chinese premier urges stronger clean energy cooperation with U.S. (Xinhua/Huang Jingwen)

The Possibility of Cooperation with the U.S. in Clean Energy

- China is accelerating a new type of 'people-oriented' urbanization plan, which offers a huge market for the advanced technology and management experience of the United States,"
- China is willing to enhance strategic trust and substantial cooperation with the United States, properly manage differences and jointly cope with regional and global challenges.
- The two economies are highly compatible, and both countries enjoy huge cooperation prospects in such areas as infrastructure, energy, information and environmental protection.

The Efforts Made by the U.S. in Clean Energy Cooperation

- A U.S. presidential trade mission was sent to Beijing.
 - This is the first-ever presidential trade mission sent to China by the Obama administration.
 - The delegation, consisting of 24 U.S. business leaders in the clean technology field
 - the delegation was led by U.S. Secretary of Commerce Penny Pritzker.
 - According to Pritzker, the mission shows how important the U.S. government considers its trade ties with China.
 - Chinese Premier Li Keqiang met with the mission, urging stronger cooperation with the United States in clean energy, environmental protection and other areas.
- U.S. side is ready to boost cooperation with China in clean energy areas.
- The United States will elevate bilateral investment treaty negotiations with China in a constructive manner in an effort to reach a list acceptable to both as soon as possible

Chinese Efforts and Expectations in Clean Energy Cooperation

- Efforts:
 - Chinese President Xi Jinping will pay a state visit to the United States in September this year.
 - China's reform and opening-up policy and its commitment to World Trade Organization regulations will remain unchanged.
 - China will continue to open wider to the world and will have a more transparent and predictable

¹ Source: <http://www.globaltimes.cn/content/917142.shtml>

market

➤ To treat Chinese and foreign companies equally and better protect intellectual property rights.

● Expectations

➤ Li called on the U.S. side to ease high-tech exports to China and take effective measures to make Chinese investment in the United States more convenient.

➤ Li urged combining U.S. technology, regulation and experience with competitive Chinese equipment and industries to jointly explore third markets.